

This architectural section drawing illustrates a building facade with a gabled roof. The structure is divided into several vertical bays. The leftmost bay features a tall, narrow section with a series of small, rectangular openings. The main facade is characterized by a grid of windows, each marked with blue dashed lines that likely represent internal structural elements or movement paths. A central entrance area is visible on the right side, featuring a set of stairs leading up to a doorway. The drawing uses fine lines to define the building's form and includes various annotations such as dimension lines and section cut symbols.

This architectural elevation drawing depicts a symmetrical building facade. The central vertical section features a staircase with a series of rectangular openings, each containing diagonal hatching. This central element is flanked by two main wings. The left wing has a series of windows, including a large central window with a decorative pattern and several smaller windows with diagonal hatching. The right wing mirrors this layout, featuring a balcony with a decorative railing and a large window with a decorative pattern. The roofline is gabled, and the overall style is that of a technical architectural drawing.
